Insights into the relationship between think tanks and policymakers

by Enrique Mendizabal on September 7, 2015

CSTEP, in India, has published the 4th edition of their Aditi Bulletin. Aditi deals with a number of interesting issues related to think tanks from the perspective of the South Asian region.

It also offers an interesting effort from a research centre in a developing country to study think tanks and their environment -something that On Think Tanks has always advocated for.

The latest issue includes the following content, all worth a read:

POLL OF THE WEEK

The general public in my country sees think tanks as:

- Generally positive and valuable to society; they wish we had more
- Generally negative; nothing more than rent seekers or lobbyists
- What is a think tank? They do not know what is a think tank?
